NOVEL MEMORY JOG. Just the Thing to Hang on the Inside of the Pantry Door.

The illustration shows a novel way to jog one's memory-rather more artistic than the good old slate-and-pencil fashion that has its disadvantages as well as its lack of beauty. The memorandum must always be copied from the slate, and that, in itself, is quite an item of disadvantage when a body is in a great hurry. In this case, a small five-cent pad of paper is used, and when the memorandum is needed it can be torn off in a twinkling and tucked away in one's pocket, or one's butcher's or grocer's pocket, if one is fortunate enough to have the mountain come to Mohammed instead of Mohammed's being obliged to put on her bonnet and go down town to the "mountain!"

The tablet is designed to be hung on the inside of the pantry door or in any other equally convenient and conspicuous place conspleuous anyway to the housewife among her mixing bowls and patty pans. The tablet in the accompanying illustration is made of a piece of prettlly-grained hard wood, with

Then the ornamentation could be a simple water-color design. The latter would be rather more effective and delicate, but not us useful and time-proof as the first treatment suggested. A housekeeper who has once tried putting her memory into black and white where it cannot possibly slip away from her to the dismay of the soda-box or cream-tartar con, will be very loath to go back to the old, wearlsome way of carrying her wents about in her own busy mind until such time as they can be realized.—Country Gentleman.

> Long Chaine Popular Again. The fancy for wearing jewelry is growing apace, and long watch chalms are becoming popular again. Twins at Staty-Three. In June, 1892, Mrs. Harrison Breedlove, of Carson, City, Nev., presented her husband with a bouncing pair of twins. This fact of itself is not out of the ordinary," but when it is known that the lady was sixty-three years of age at that time, and the husband over seventy, it becomes an item worthy of record in all annals devoted to oddities respecting human beings. The Breed-loves are said to be the oldest couple in the world that were ever so favored.

There can ue no modus vivendi established between the classes and the masses. Sparta agreed at one time to accept the joint reign of two kings, but a pure democracy must govern alone or be governed. No great civilization was ever based upon the stark brain power of any set of men. It is not enough to think out an algebraic formula of human society. It must be lived out. Both the aristocrat and the savage can think-sometimes they think alike-but neither can found great nations. Civilization is the robust child of brain and heart and must grow in an atmosphere of morality.

The purely intellectual aristocrat, bred in the toils of a subtle erudition unwarmed by the temperature of humanity, can domineer, but he can neither guide nor counsel wisely. The sentifrage and vindicated in many ordeals of this, the greatest of nations, is the vital educating force of the century. - Donahoe's Magazine.
